Dear Gail,

A few things: First, your very generous check for $25 for the walkathon was well received and is greatly appreciated. All potential sponsors have not yet responded, but I expect to raise close to $300 in all.

Secondly, your 1960 golden oldies tape is on its way to you. It has been road tested, adjusted, and approved as is. Hope you can dig it, baby.

Regarding your request for blender drink recipes, I have enclosed a few pages from my "Blender Way To Better Cooking" book. I think that the one that you were referring to was the Orange-strawberry breakfast in a glass. On a 3 x 5 card enclosed I have typed another recipe from a page that I forgot to copy. It is another favorite of mine. Hope you all enjoy them.

The campaign against Proposition 64 is starting to look good. 64 is the one that would provide for (among other things) the quarantine or isolation of people with AIDS, people with ARC, anyone who tests positive for the AIDS virus antibody. It would also allow for the involuntary testing of anyone "suspected" of carrying the virus. The "No On 64" campaign has gotten everyone who is anyone from the AMA to officials of both major political parties at all levels of government (including the governor) to come out publicly against Proposition 64. In June polls showed that 60% of the people favored quarantine. Now it appears to be somewhere around 30% who would support it. But there are about 30% undecided. So anything could happen on election day. Enclosed are a couple of reprints on the subject, and my response to one of them.

Love all around,
